Manager Blamed for Woes by Dainty Mite, Who Has Already Rehearsed Part.

HAWKINS

"Hop" and journeyed all the way from London to show the big people of New York just what little people can do on the stage.

But she came without a contract, and there is danger of New York not seeing Iris play "Hop" in that charming tale of the little fellow who spent half of his life sleeping in a giant's car and the other half reposing in the cavalier's boots.

According to Irls she was assured. in England, that when she arrived in New York she would find a great big centract for an extremely long engagement awaiting ber. But that contract got lost in the shuffle, and though she has periodically, consistently and prac-oally begged for that sacred document, it was not forthcoming. Real, un-adulterated anger, followed by tears. SHE THREATENS TO GO BACK TO

DEAR OLD LONDON. was always "out." But not desiring to upset "Hop o' My Thumb" she continued rehearsing with the other 20 play ers at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory on East Thirty-fourth street. She rehearsed all last week, the week before and the first section of this week.

Yesterday the storm broke. She just marched right up to Mr. Brady's office and threatened that unless the contract was forthcoming she would leave "Hop o' MY Thumb" without a "Hop." Then she glided straight to the nearest cable Mce and wired her London managers that they could start arranging for her appearance there as Puck in "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream," which piece she was booked to appear in when she accepted her New York offer.

Several schooners depart Saturday across the "big drink," and unless Mr. Brady pushes that contract out in the meanwhile "Hop" is woing to hop right back to London.

When seen at her apartment at No. 151 East Nineteenth street to-day Miss Hawkins had cooled down and, like a real member of her sex, was solibing. Between tears she said:

"I started rehearsing," believing that contract would follow shortly. But h didn't. Two lost my evesight looking for it. I want a tentative agreement or a long guarantee. I've got neither. and unless I get it within the next twenty-four hours I shall sail for hiutope Saturday And his whole pantomime will go to-smash! For I undeparted from the other principals the

The Nemo Non-Stretchable Corset

If you have never worn a Nemo you are thoroughly acquainted with the inconvenience of a Corset that stretches and ultimately loses its shape.
What causes the ordinary Corset to stretch? The cut edges of the material, for they are not properly finished to prevent giving after they are sewed together. The Nemo Corset does not stretch, because every edge of material is stretched by pressure and then corrugated before it is stitched. For Other Reasons the Nemo Is the Most Unique Corset In the World

For instance, the "Bridge" that eliminates all possible pressure on the diaphragm, the bands of the Lastikops webbing that reduce the hips and abdomen by automatic massage.

All the new models of the Nemo Corsets—at $3 to $10—await your inspection in the Pink Corset Shop, Second Floor.
